Dear [redacted]

STAT

The purpose of this letter is twofold. I desire first on my own behalf, and for the members of the Joint Working Group on Ground Photography, to express our very real appreciation for the generous assistance and hospitality accorded the group by your Corporation and its employees during our recent meetings held in [redacted]. Secondly, and again writing on behalf of the entire party and myself, I wish to express our regret that circumstance did not allow you to be with us, to meet our members and thus permit a more personal expression of our thanks for, and our pleasure at [redacted] excellent contribution to a very successful meeting.

STAT

[redacted] did a thorough and thoughtful job of planning on our behalf. The tours and other arrangements that were made for us were complete and gave evidence not only of a comprehension of our purpose in visiting [redacted] but also of the diversified interests of the group. Would you be kind enough to relay our appreciation to these gentlemen and the other members of your staff?

STAT

The various members of the Working Group found many things that were of interest in your diversified range of operations and I am confident that some of them will be personally contacting [redacted] to explore your capabilities in more detail.

STAT

Again may I express our regret that you had to be away and that you could not share the personal fellowship and excellent dinner generously provided by your organization in cooperation with [redacted].

STAT

[redacted] We all look forward to meeting you personally one day in the near future. In the meantime please accept our warm thanks to you and the members of your organization for all of your efforts on our behalf.
